General Information

Dry ice is the most concentrated form of cold readily available and is supplied in block, nuggets or pellets. Dry ice has approximately double the refrigeration capacity of water ice by weight. It is colder (-79°C), leaves no mess, lasts longer and is the ideal portable refrigeration for coolers, car fridges and ice boxes.

When using with Fresh Products

Fresh products, such as tomatoes, eggs, salads, butter, milk and fresh meat should be stored in airtight, sealed containers, inside the cooler.

Freezing and Frozen Products

Freezing products quickly can be done by placing either blocks or pellets of Dry Ice throughout the cooler containing your products.

Dry Ice with Water Ice

A combination of dry ice and water ice is ideal for parties, barbeques, picnics and camping. Keep beer, wine and soft drink cold and enjoy crisp cool salads.
